in the aftermath of armed conflicts on military humanitarian intervention and the development of human rights protection this book examines recent developments in sources of public international law such as treaties and custom operating among nations in their mutual relations as well as developments in some of the primary rules of law international institutions created by these processes it finds that public international law has become increasingly dysfunctional in dealing with some of the primary problems facing the world community such as the maintenance of international peace and security violations of international human rights and the law of armed conflict arms control disarmament and non proliferation and international environmental issues and that international law and international institutions face a problematic future it concludes however that all is not lost there are possible alternative futures for international law and legal process but choosing among them will require the world community making hard choices this book challenges the idea that international law looks the same from anywhere in the world instead how international lawyers understand and approach their field is often deeply influenced by the national contexts in which they lived studied and worked international law in the united states and in the united kingdom looks different compared to international law in china and russia though some approaches particularly western anglo american ones are more influential outside their borders than others given shifts in geopolitical power and the rise of non western powers like china it is increasingly important for international lawyers to understand how others coming from diverse backgrounds approach the field by examining the international law academies and textbooks of the five permanent members of the un security council roberts provides a window into these different communities of international lawyers and she uncovers some of the similarities and differences in how they understand and approach international law while many teachers of music composition have influenced both the aesthetic and eventual success of their students few have equaled the contributions of arnold schoenberg and nadia boulangier in the twentieth century a larger volume of a more comprehensive collection including all music composition teachers of the era would serve a certain purpose however the unique aspect of the current text examines in detail and herein presented for the first time in print many of the teaching materials and approaches of these two famed musicians selection of these two teachers for comparison was made owing to the musical position so famously attributed to each schoenberg s predilection to the german school boulangier s favoritism to the french stravinsky aesthetic in making the case for both schoenberg and boulangier the author has chosen two differing philosophies of music education practice of the late twentieth century and early twenty first century those of bennett reimer and david elliot the author examines the materials and methods of each schoenberg and boulangier in light of each reimer s and elliot s case for music education philosophy among the subjects discussed the nature of musical creativity the process and methods of teaching creativity music and the teacher student dynamic to name a few in closing the author has presented his own suggestions for teachers or would be teachers of music composition in a seven step process leading to an effective pedagogy of the subject culinary man and the kitchen brigade offers an exploration of the field of normative subjectivity circulated within western fine dining traditions presenting a theoretical analysis of the governing relationship between the chef who embodies the culinary man and the fine dining brigade the book offers a unique treatment of western haute cuisine's interlocking regime of labor and aesthetics and theorizes the underexplored kitchen brigade as a model of disciplinary formation it deploys a heterogeneous set of disciplinary discourses and practices which have the effect of consolidating monopolies on epistemic authority and governance each position within the brigade's hierarchy is subject to distinct though related disciplinary practices thus chapters identify the specific practices pertinent to each brigade subject while also illuminating how they fit together as a coherent hegemonic project the application of wynterian and foucauldian insight to the fine dining brigade offers a political theory of culinary work which departs from other food studies texts notably this work offers an in depth treatment of the brigade's colonial dimensions which resonate with emerging critiques scholarly and general of the race and gender politics of restaurant labor the concluding chapters seek to identify where extant modes of resistance or alternative forms of culinary organization may hold the potential to move beyond the hegemonic overrepresentation of culinary man this book will be of great interest to students and scholars from across the social sciences and humanities interested in critical food studies political and cultural theory and popular culinary culture
